Adam Beder Joins Solaris Staff as Director of Government Affairs

Edison, NJ – Solaris Health System is proud to announce Adam Beder as its new Director of Government Affairs. As the Director of Government Affairs, he acts as a liaison between Solaris and local, state, and federal policymakers.

Since 2002, Beder served as the Deputy Director for the New Jersey Hospital Association, the state's largest healthcare trade association. There he worked with both hospital and government staff to implement advocacy strategies on behalf of the 102 hospitals part of the Association. He also served as a lobbyist before the New Jersey Legislature and has presented testimony before various committees.

Previously Beder worked for Senator Barbara Buono and Assemblyman Peter J. Barnes, Jr. as their legislative director. He managed their legislative portfolios, researching and drafting legislation. Additionally Beder stood in as a surrogate speaker for both assembly members, presenting before community groups, legislative committees, and local governments.

He received his undergraduate degree from William Paterson University and is pursuing a Master's Degree in Public Policy and Politics at Rutgers University's Bloustein School of Public Policy.
