Muhlenberg Raises Funds to Enhance Diagnostic Capabilities

Plainfield, NJ – Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center’s Radiology Department is looking to become more technologically advanced than ever before. Therefore, the Muhlenberg Foundation is raising more than $1 million in efforts to revolutionize the medical center’s diagnostic capabilities.

“Digital radiography will truly bring Muhlenberg to the cutting edge,” says Fred Wishner, Director of Diagnostic Imaging at Muhlenberg. “We will have the potential to increase our volume by as much as 25 percent, while ultimately improving the care we provide to our patients.”

With enough funds raised, digital radiography technology will be purchased, allowing the department to expand its scope of service with fluoroscopy studies and other imaging procedures. A digital platform will be introduced, enhancing image quality, reducing radiation exposure, expediting testing and results, facilitating better communication among technologists, physicians and patients. Furthermore, the project will involve two digital radiology suites and a dedicated chest imaging system, benefiting almost 60 percent of Muhlenberg’s patients. The technology will also be linked to Muhlenberg’s PACS (Picture Archive and Communications System), enabling physicians to review high-resolution images from any wired computer.

Diagnostic Imaging is a cornerstone for outstanding health care delivery and a foundation for Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center's pursuit of clinical excellence. As one of its busiest hubs, the medical center’s Radiology Department performs about 31,000 diagnostic procedures each year, providing physicians with essential information to detect disease and determine the best pathway to recovery.

Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center is a 396-bed, university-affiliated, teaching medical center that provides quality health services to Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties.
